

Back Office

The latest generation of accounting, purchasing and Back Office systems do more than balance the books. They provide insight to company operations using EIS enhancements, cost of sale reductions using procurement portal integration, and productivity gains using requisition systems among other benefits. Let O'Neal Consultants investigate the latest trends in Back Office systems that would be practical for your company.

O'Neal Consultants' services include developing Back Office Request for Proposal (RFP) and managing the procurement process, so that you have our expert supervision regarding proposal comparisons, contract documents, installation monitoring, and final inspection. In addition, O'Neal Consultants is available for existing systems reviews and consulting.
